

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A speed control device and counter for a motor vehicle includes an auxiliary accelerator member and a plurality of counters for analyzing the driving habits of an individual. The auxiliary accelerator member is moveable between an operational and an inactive position and is adapted to engage the calf, knee or thigh of a driver in its operational position. The speed control device may also incorporate a drive-by-wire principal of operation.